

Wild suggestions for Aspedal 2009-09-10 NEWS: - Think what people can achieve when they create free, says the policy Olle Adolfsson. - Good thing I will not choose a winner, like Liberal Party politician Ingvar Frid. 41 more or less wild proposals for developing the area between Aspedal-Aspevallen is displayed for INSPECTION until next Friday. It is made of an equal number of young European architects, who chose to work with the site of the great architectural competition European 10, which this year celebrates its 20th anniversary. - Our site has attracted most architects ever, "says Karin Karlsson on the Built Environment sector, who watched the show a few days. She notes that interest is high and many opinions - everything from crazy to exciting. - The region's best land, found that plan manager Andreas Lidholm, as he presented the project at a mingle evening on Tuesday. The mission of the architects was to design homes, businesses and places of recreation and sports in the area. This is the area where the treatment plant is located today, but continues to only remove Aspevallen. Lidholm others could also tell that this year took 60 pitches in the contest including four from Sweden. - Now we have the month of September for us to review the proposals. In mid-October, then we present our views on the international jury in Stockholm. Then we have nothing more to say, he explained to the visitors. Only in January it becomes clear what the two proposals is the winner. - Our ambition is to when to start planning work and somehow bring the winners of this work, "he said. When asked if there are many of the winning projects that have materialized over the years, he replied "no, not that many." But the municipality's ambition is to do so accor plan manager Andreas Lidholm. - Otherwise we would not put a 800 000 SEK to be in the contest.
